

Clayton, S., & Opatow, S. (2003, Eds.). Identity and the natural environment. Cambridge, MA: MIT Press.

Includes:

Clayton, S., & Opatow, S., Introduction: Identity and the natural environment, pp. 1-24.

Holmes, S. J., Some lives and some theories, pp. 25-42.

Part 1: Experiencing Nature as Individuals

Clayton, S., Environmental identity: A conceptual and an operational definition.

Myers, G., & Russell, A., Human identity in relation to wild black bears: A natural-social ecology of subjective creatures, pp. 67-90.

Gebhardt, U., Nevers, P., & Billmann-Mahecha, E., Moralizing trees: Anthropomorphism and identity in children's relationships to nature, pp. 91-112.
Kahn, P.H., The development of environmental moral identity, pp. 113-135.

Kals, E., & Ittner, H., Children's environmental identity: Indicators and behavioral impacts, pp. 135- 158.

Part 2: Experiencing Nature in Social and Community Contexts

Kalof, L., The human self and the animal others: Exploring borderland identities, pp. 161-178.

Sommer, R., Trees and human identity, pp. 179-204.
Austin, M. E., & Kaplan, R., Identity, involvement, and expertise in the inner city: Some benefits of tree-planting projects, pp. 205-226.

Linneweber, V., Hartmuth, G., & Fritsche, I., Representations of the local environment as threatened by global climate change: Toward a contextualized analysis of environmental identity in a coastal area, pp. 227-256.

Part III: Experiencing Nature as Members of Social Groups

Opatow, S., & Brook, A., Identity and exclusion in rangeland conflict, pp. 249-272.

Samuelson, C. D., Peterson, T. R., & Putnam, L. L., Group identity and stakeholder conflict in water resource management, pp. 273- 296.

Zavestoski, S., Constructing and maintaining ecological identities: The strategies of deep ecologists, pp. 297-316.

Kempton, W., & Holland, D. C., Identity and sustained environmental practice, pp. 317-342.